SHARON

Sharon, Aug. 7.—One of the largest crowds ever assembled in Sharon, gathered on Wednesday evening to witness the unveiling of the honor board. A fine concert was given by the Sharon band, under the leadership of Arthur Hatch of Delavan. Roy C. Cannon of Janesville, gave the principal talk on his experiences in the war, having been in the 33rd division, and in one of the big drives was captured and taken prisoner by the Germans.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wehring and children, and Miss Hattie Carvers of Darlen, were here Wednesday to attend the unveiling of the honor board. Mr. George Perry of Beloit, a business visitor in town Thursday.

Mr. John Bollinger was a Chicago visitor Wednesday.

Mrs. George Willey of Darlen, visited relatives in town Wednesday evening.

Joe Englehart has purchased the home of Mrs. Alice Shager. Possession will be given Monday.

George Perry of Beloit, spent Wednesday in town.

Mrs. Jessie Peterson is moving into the Mason house, which she recently purchased.

The O. K. S. held an ice cream social Wednesday evening on the lawn of Dr. Hoffman's residence.

Charles Morris has purchased the home of C. E. Underhill, on the south shore of Delavan lake.

Erwan Chester, Robert Losse and George Stoll left Thursday for a two week's stay at Phantom lake.

Argentine Minister Not Received by King

Buenos Aires, Aug. 8.—Senor Toledo, Argentine minister to Great Britain, whose return to this country was said yesterday by newspapers to indicate improved relations with the British government, was received by King George, according to London dispatches printed today by La Nación and La Prensa. La Nación yesterday printed a statement that the Argentine minister presented his credentials but had not been received, presumably because of the Argentine government's purchase of C. E. Underhill, the south shore of Delavan lake.

Mr. Rognald Tower, British minister to Argentina, was said by La Nación to be not "disconnected" with the other instance.

Sir Rognald denied that his return to England had any significance. He said the trip would be made for rest.

The Bahia Blanca, interned at Buenos Aires and damaged by her German crew early in the war, was taken over by the Argentine government in June, 1913, but never went to sea because the allies, including the United States, refused to recognize the transfer of her flag.

TWO STATES ARGUING OVER OWNERSHIP OF RED RIVER

veyors had no definite information regarding latitude and longitude in the United States, and a little idea of the vast extent of the country. Yet charters often fixed boundary lines according to degree of latitudes as they were supposed to be located, and the surveyors had to struggle with directions which became at times impossible to follow.

Old Lines Revised
Carelessness respecting boundaries in two miles or more out of the way, which made trouble for their successors. Those old lines have been mostly revised and verified, often with great difficulty.

The popular way of marking boundaries, when the first lines were run, was to blaze a trail along the boundary, and then to follow it. This was done by following the line, with a special mark of several notches to indicate corners. Some of these lines were blazed 150 years ago, and have been followed by the surveyors for these landmarks. Surveyors hunting the bark and cut into the trees which answer the descriptions given in boundary documents.

This sort of detective work solved the Tennessee-North Carolina boundary question in 1915. The line was supposed to follow a range of mountains, but the mountains gave out before the end of the line was reached, and the only way to establish the line was to follow the original boundary marks. In this case 100 trees had been marked in 1821, nearly 100 years before. Although the notches were almost obliterated, 30 blazed trees were found.

A similar search in Maryland finished a 50 year dispute in which half a million dollars had been spent in suits. The rings on some of the trees showed that the notches had been made 130 years before, thus proving which trees marked the original survey.

Surveyors no longer mark off important boundaries by blazed trees. Where rivers or other distinct natural boundaries do not exist, monuments are set up. The Mexican border is decorated every few miles by large lines which can be seen for large distances. The Alaskan frontier is marked off by bronze monuments in concrete bases. Some of the states, Ohio and Michigan, exchange lines with states set up at every mile. Many states, on the other hand, have no adequate boundary markings.

As far back as 1791, George Washington, in his survey of the Ohio River, instead of blazed trees in fixing the limits of the District of Columbia, thirty-six of the 40 stones can still be found, sunk deep into the ground and in the carving half effaced.

The District survey is set slightly crooked, but this was probably not President Washington's mistake, as he supervised the work only in a general way.

Widespread use of stone monuments in original surveys would have prevented most American boundary troubles. Some of the states, fixed lines by such landmarks as a group of white oak trees, the road by Seth Sheldon's and the wading place in a river where a large rock is to be seen at low tide.

Caused all kinds of complications. The white oak trees would be cut down for firewood regardless of dates or marks. Seth would die, and nobody would remember who he was or where he lived. The stone in the river would be moved by some person with an innocent desire to be useful, and the case would rest in the courts for years.

Our state boundaries have been more radically changed in the past 150 years than have the frontiers of European countries, but now our state lines are in the main settled. To divide lines into two states, or to change a state into two states, or to change the boundary in any way, requires the consent of all states concerned, and by some state laws the national congress must also approve.

In most cases changes in boundary lines now simmer down to lengthy conversations. A typical instance of this occurred when California, considering a division into two states, asked on the basis of a question as to which part should retain the name California, and the project was dropped.

Why can't Janesville have a protestant hospital?

Are there not enough protestants in Janesville to build a hospital? Other cities have, why can't we? With all the rest of the improvements in Janesville with the exception of houses to rent, I know of nothing we need more than a protestant hospital.

ALDERMAN DULIN GREATEST HOST OF ALL-LAKOTA CLUB

Three cheers for Alderman John J. Dulin, the greatest host of all. The Dulin residence through the corridors of the Lake Lawn hotel, at Delavan, for fully five minutes last night, after Mr. Dulin had finished a short address to the 70 members of the Lakota club who were his guests. Mr. Dulin, who is out of town for his son, Claude, who recently returned home after 15 months service with the United States army in southern Texas.

It was a great day for Mr. Dulin, his son, and the members of the Lakota club. It was a picnic, a social, a party, and a grand and glorious day. There was only one incident to mar the picnic and that occurred when the afternoon when the bachelors in the clubhouse. The outcome was never in doubt from the start and the game ended with the score 4 to 4. It was a tie, and the bachelors, who had figured that the married men could not play ball unless their wives were on the sidelines watching. Alderman Dulin officiated as umpire during the game and his decisions were never questioned.

Eno Koch and George Berger, catcher and pitcher for the bachelors, refused to admit defeat and they insisted the contest ended they insisted the bachelors were robbed of the game.

At the conclusion of the ball game pop and ginger ale and soft drinks were served to the hungry athletes. By the way, the bachelors recently back from France. "Scotty" was kept busy during the afternoon and when last seen was asking when the next outing was to be held.

Jimmie Quinn had charge of the flowers for the occasion. Each member of the club and guests were given a pink carnation. Again Reno Koch attracted attention when he insisted on wearing two carnations. Reno said it was no more than right as Maurice Dalton had one before he arrived.

At eight o'clock the men entered the spacious dining hall. The service was excellent, the men hungry and the time required to finish the meal was condensed by all records.

Mayor T. B. Welsh addressed the party and in a short talk told of the work of the club and the Lakota club and Janesville during the war. "We know you would win and we are more than glad to have you all back," Mayor Welsh said.

City Attorney Roger Cunningham was selected as toastmaster for the work of the club and extended the thanks of the club members to Alderman Dulin.

"This is the proudest moment of my life and one I have been waiting for for months," Alderman Dulin said as he arose amid the cheers of the crowd.

Alderman Dulin spoke of his happiness when he returned and said when he would again be host to the club when the remaining four members, still in service, returned.

Mr. Dulin spoke in terms of the work of the club and the Lakota club in Janesville, regardless of who he was.

Play fair and above board, and when you find a square man, play fair and go with him regardless of politics and religion," Mr. Dulin said.

Claude Dulin was then called upon for a talk and in a short address told of his stay in southern Texas. "I was in the H. L. hole for 15 months and I am sure glad to get back in Janesville and to the Lakota club," he said.

Six members of the club, John Riley, John Hendricksen, Luc Leight Wood, Charles E. Lee, "Scotty" Johnson and Bill Brockhouse.

George Sennett, retiring president of the club was then called on for a few words. Mr. Sennett spoke of the work of the club and the Lakota club in Janesville, regardless of who he was.

He then offered a resolution that the club go on making a deep debt to the city of Janesville for the outing. The resolution was unanimously carried.

The Lakota club quartette rendered several selections and closed the program with "Till We Meet Again."

David Drummond gave two solos, "The Gates of Gladness" and "Maiden Love" at the band concert given in the court house park last evening. Besides these two selections the Power City band, under the direction of Prof. W. T. Thiele, gave a program of eight numbers.

The band stand was placed in front of the Court House, instead of the usual location.

MODERN EQUIPMENT INSTALLED BY PURE MILK COMPANY HERE

The Janesville Pure Milk company, in connection with Janesville's rapid growth along commercial lines has recently installed a new and modern ice machine. The machine was manufactured by the Davis Watkins Dairy-men's Manufacturing company, and consists of a 10-ton tonnage refrigeration compressor, driven by a 10-horse-power motor. The piping throughout the plant is of ample capacity for correct refrigeration and the machine is working very successfully.

The milk, immediately upon being received, is pasteurized and bottled in glass bottles, which is as low as possible without freezing the milk. When bottled, the milk is placed in the new large cork insulated refrigerator, which is also a recent addition to the plant, and held there at the same temperature until leaving on the wagons for delivery throughout the city.

The bottles at the plant are sterilized by the Davis Bottle Sterilizer, which insures absolute cleanliness.

In addition to the above improvements, Mr. Casey states that the company will install an automatic bottle filler and capper of the latest type.

WANT CLEMENCEAU TO ATTEND MEET

Paris, Aug. 8.—The presence of Premier Clemenceau at the first general assembly of the league of nations at Washington is strongly urged in American quarters, according to Marcel Hutin of the Echo de Paris, who said his informant is a French statesman.

M. Hutin added that while of course the premier "cannot bind himself to go to America at the time which he pleases," France is particularly desirous, it may be possible to arrange things.

As to the date of the assembly, it is said, an exchange of views between the allied governments is now going on.

Edgerton News

Edgerton, Aug. 8.—The fourth annual picnic given by the Edgerton Chamber of Commerce at the driving park yesterday was a success from every angle. The day was ideal for the picnic and nearly 4,000 people assembled at the grounds as guests of the Chamber of Commerce. Two ball games were played. The Highway team defeated the Cambridge team in the morning by a score of 7 to 1, and in the afternoon Jefferson defeated Whitewater, 9 to 5. Both games were good, and from a spectator's standpoint were better games than the scores would indicate. At noon the Chamber of Commerce furnished a picnic dinner for the picnic dinner and no charge was made. Three policemen from Janesville were here to assist the local police force in handling the crowds. No arrests were made and the police report the most orderly crowd ever in the city. In the evening the Edgerton band furnished music for the picnic and the Chamber of Commerce gave for the people of this community to get together and spend the day as guests of the Chamber of Commerce and the ever increasing crowds that attend the picnics demonstrate that the day set aside is becoming a popular holiday in the community.

SECRETARY DANIELS CENSORS SPEECH OF ADMIRAL RODMAN

(By Associated Press.)
San Diego, Cal., Aug. 8.—A speech, specially prepared and handed to the press in advance by Admiral Hugh Rodman, commander of the new Pacific fleet, remains in his pocket undelivered today. Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels last night censured the prepared address just before the admiral was to speak at a banquet at the Hotel Del Coronado.

Admiral Rodman announced to the banquet when called upon to speak that permission to deliver his prepared address had been refused by the secretary of the navy.

Secretary Daniels was but two seats away from the admiral. No reason was advanced by Admiral Rodman for the ban on his speech. Neither was one forthcoming from Secretary Daniels.

THE HONOR ROLL.

The predicament of the newcomer to Janesville is not appreciated by the householders who are comfortably situated in their homes with only the worries common to all of us to think about. The man who casts his lot among us—comes to town full of enthusiasm to take up his new duties, and then goes out to hunt a house—is really up against it. A few evenings since a young couple stepped on a corner in a residence district to get their bearings, and accosted a man in his yard something like this:

"Can you tell us of any garage or shed or barn where we might find a place to live? We have just recently come to the city and are living in one room. We want to bring the rest of the family and set up our home, but can find nothing at all in which to live."

The man in the yard pondered, but could think of no place where the couple might locate, and bring the little ones back, with the relatives—and so they wandered on. This couple is but one of many who in numerous instances have been obliged to leave the city and opportunity because they could not find a place to live in, and it is the beginning of a condition which is deplorable, to say the least.

What can be done more than is being done? Here's a suggestion, and every person within the limits of Janesville should think deeply on the problem. If every man or woman here who is able to build one, two, three, four or five houses—not the expensive kind, just a good basement and a five or six room cottage, even without furnace or heating plant—and a few more they scatter mirth and merriment, and a better condition will be sold to the tenant later, that man or woman will be doing one of the greatest civic services imaginable. Homes of this character will house people who are here now and are coming here, and the city will grow in its proper area; the women and children now crowded to take up any habitation will be properly housed. There are cases where families are living in barns and tobacco sheds—think of it!

Builders actuated from the standpoint of civic usefulness and patriotism should be placed upon an honor roll. Many houses are going up. These all help. But about you? Will you join the honor roll?

BLOOD AND THUNDER.

Q. For how many years do the members of parliament in Germany remain in office? F. T.

A. A proposal that members of parliament shall be elected for four years was adopted recently by a vote of 188 to 139.

Q. What was the old method of vaccination in Japan? V. H.

A. The old method of vaccination in Japan practiced before 1874 was to vaccinate on the tip of the nose.

Q. In what way does the Eersian calendar differ from ours? F. V.

A. We have a different name for every day in the week, while the Persians have a different name for every day in the month.

Q. What is the world aviation record for height and who holds it? C. J.

A. The world's record is 33,138 feet made by Adjt. Casale of the French army in June last. The American height was made by Rohlf at a height of 30,700 feet, on July 20, in an official flight from Roosevelt field.

Q. When was the first American cent coined and circulated? J. F. V.

A. The first American cent was coined and circulated in 1794. Several patterns were struck off before this but none were circulated.

Q. Is there any way to straighten out a delicate veil that has become wrinkled? F. D.

A. If the veil is too delicate to press, roll smoothly on cardboard and steam over a kettle.

Q. How many officers are there in the service now, and how many have been discharged? T. R.

A. We have only 12,117 officers in the service as against 188,434 last November. Demobilization is now 74 percent complete.

Q. What is the proposed air line to the Congo? D. V.

A. The Belgian committee on aeronautics have decided to have an air line for the Congo colony. There will be mail and passenger transport, but the chief aim is to get correct charts and maps of the Congo river. King Albert has contributed to help get the necessary flying machines.

Q. Can you explain to me the difference between an "airship" and an "airplane"? B. I.

A. The air service has officially decided to use the word "airship" only designate dirigible balloons and other lighter-than-air types of craft. All heavier-than-air craft will be designated as "airplanes."

Q. What is the origin of the word "bunglow"? D. V.

A. It is an Anglo-Indian corruption of the Hindoo "bungalow," the name given in India to a thatched bamboo hut invented by the British to meet their requirements while there.

It tells him something useful. It helps him and his family in a dozen ways. This farmer gets the other government publications regularly, also. He lets the county agent and the state agricultural college help him. These are tools, to be kept in bright and shining use.

Attorney-General Groesbeck will investigate the possibility of the state fixing the prices of necessities. If it does, we hope it will do better than the federal government. Whenever the federal authorities fixed costs they always set them higher, instead of lower, and we are suffering the results now.

When President Kedzie went to Mason to see Valieu he found the prisoner conversing with his family on the porch. Real pleasant summer quarters those, and while his family is living on a truck he can spend the evenings in a regular place.

Rep. Igoo did not want to go until he could investigate the prices of shoes so all could go, and so the house of representatives did not go.

Now the senate proposes to reduce the amount of currency in circulation. Well, it won't decrease ours very much.

Isn't there something in that League of Nations that will solve the living problem? If not, let's go to war and die.

THE GLOWING FUTURE.

Life is getting kinder every day. Men are striving harder to be true; Never mind what scornful cynics say. Overhead the skies are shining blue.

Through the clouds the sun of truth appears. Selfishness is breaking down at last. Now the future glows with happy peace. Peace shall bless the ashes of the past.

Better days than we have ever known. Shall our little children live to see. They shall claim contentment for their own. They shall have the blessings of the free.

They shall dwell with neighbors kind and fair. They shall walk with brave and gentle friends. Goodness now is growing everywhere. As the star of happiness ascends.

Men are holding bigger dreams today. Than ever were dreamed of in days of old. They are striving here a better way. Worth now is a brighter gem than gold.

More and more men share their brothers' care. More and more they scatter mirth and cheer. Kindly thoughts are growing everywhere. Hatred has begun to disappear.

Life is getting fairer every day. Hope is shining bright on every hand. Old-time fetters now are thrown away. Freedom is the hallmark of our land. Here are signs which every eye can see.

Of a radiant future for our youth. Men are toiling for the world to see. Out of the darkness shines the light of truth.

Q. What is the proposed air line to the Congo? D. V.

A. The Belgian committee on aeronautics have decided to have an air line for the Congo colony. There will be mail and passenger transport, but the chief aim is to get correct charts and maps of the Congo river. King Albert has contributed to help get the necessary flying machines.

Q. Can you explain to me the difference between an "airship" and an "airplane"? B. I.

A. The air service has officially decided to use the word "airship" only designate dirigible balloons and other lighter-than-air types of craft. All heavier-than-air craft will be designated as "airplanes."

Q. What is the origin of the word "bunglow"? D. V.

A. It is an Anglo-Indian corruption of the Hindoo "bungalow," the name given in India to a thatched bamboo hut invented by the British to meet their requirements while there.

The Springfield "Leader" has been wondering if milk and buttermilk will not eventually come under the prohibition ban since most of the cows have a kick.

Some day everything will work out just right for everybody, and the ice cream manufacturers will have obtained a law putting those who own two-quart freezers in their homes in the same class with moonshiners. —K. C. Star.

"Dog days are now here in earnest and will remain until August 21," announces the Jefferson City "Democrat-Tribune." "This is usually the hottest and driest season of the year, so going mad, mosquitoes carrying burglar outfits to break through screens, etc., are now ripe and ready for plucking. No affidavits need accompany any of these stories, nor need afraid people sign their names to same, for there are plenty of duplicates in every well-regulated newspaper office."

"After all," sighs the Higginsville "Jeffersonian," "daylight is about all we can save these days."

"A Frenchman had at the close of hostilities perfected a cannon with a range of 300 miles," notes the Lawrence "Journal-World." Like the American ordinance it didn't get into action. Travelette

By NIKSAH

It is estimated that New York city and its environs now contain ten million people. Do you sense the meaning of this statement? It means that one-tenth of all the people in the United States are either housed on the light little specks of Manhattan, or massed on its outskirts.

It means that one-tenth of everything the United States of America produces—every tenth egg and every tenth potato—must be rushed there post haste, or overgrown Gotham will go hungry.

Up to this writing the country has never failed New York. Its breakfast table is always replete. To make this possible the midnight express from Washington, the capital of the nation, carrying the elect of our proud land, every night pulls on to the side track to let the food specialists from the south and the middle west go by. Otherwise New York would not eat in the morning.

We out-of-town folks are quite familiar with cabbages and canteloupes and cucumbers, on account of being raised with them, but we are always shocked at their astonishing rise in value when we have to buy them in New York.

NEW FEATURES SECURED FOR THE JANESVILLE FAIR

Plans for a few more features for the big Janesville fair to be given September 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th, have been completed. The war department will have a war trophy exhibit here for all four days. Elements and 20 enlisted men will accompany the party. Tents will be carried and army life will be depicted. War trophies will be on exhibition and no admission will be charged. This truck train is spending the entire summer visiting fairs.

"Another big feature of the fair will be an automobile show, to be given under a large tent. Trucks and trailers will be shown beside the regular touring cars and accessories.

The premium lists are now out and can be secured at the local banks, J. M. Dorans and Sons, Amerphol's Floral shop, and Dr. Munn's office. Out of town people may secure them by mail by writing to Harry Nowlan, secretary of the fair association.

PLANS FOR NEW LOCK-UP APPROVED

Approval of the plans for the new city lock-up has been secured by C. V. Kerch, city engineer, from the City Commission at Madison. Some time ago the State Board of Control approved the plans. Alderman Paulz, the chairman of the building committee, will probably take action on the building within a few days. Mr. Kerch said today.

The bids for the contract were opened some time ago but no bids were at that time received. It is the plan of the building committee to ask for bids again in the near future. If none are received then the city will have to hire the labor done.

Work is progressing on the new Jackson street bridge. Mr. Kerch said. The second pier is completed. All of the old bridge has been torn out and the false work is all ready for the arches.

MADISON MAN IS APPOINTED HEAD OF VOCATIONAL SCHOOL

J. M. Dorans, Madison, has been chosen by the vocational board, as director of the vocational school and general supervisor of manual training activities in the city.

Mr. Dorans was born in Scotland. He received his technical training at Technical College, Glasgow, Scotland. For 6 years, Mr. Dorans was an instructor in manual arts at the state university. For the past three years he has been state supervisor of manual training. He has had a number of years practical experience as foreman and assistant superintendent in several industrial plants of the country.

A plan has been worked out with the city board of education, by which Mr. Dorans will supervise all of the manual training in the city schools, his salary in part to be paid by the city school board.

H. H. Faust, a member of the vocational board said this morning, that both of the school boards feel fortunate in securing the services of a man so well fitted to fill the place of the late Charles F. Hill. He also said that Mr. Dorans would be able to give expert advice for the manual training equipment of the new high school.

Mr. Dorans will take up his duties September 1. He is making plans now to move his family from Madison to this city.

The vocational board is composed of Fred Smith, president; V. F. Richardson, E. L. Badger, George O. Bucholtz, and H. H. Faust.

A new atlas of the world, corrected to the peace terms, has just been issued by the Gazette. A graphic story of the world war is given which was written by Martin M. Wilham, member of the Buffalo Historical society. Terms of the peace, the number of distinguished crosses awarded to each division, and a chronology of the war are some of the interesting facts which the book contains.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young married woman with two little children. My husband is eight years older than I. He is good, kind, industrious, but not affectionate. Within the last year I have met a man, the same age as myself, who is all that my husband is and he is not. He is about the same in every way as my husband. I am a him more. His pleasing personality won me on a very short acquaintance.

I have striven against my feelings for the last seven months. We try not to let ourselves forget that I am not free, and try not to talk about our affections, but we invariably do. I saw this fellow recently and as I was leaving he said his heart went with me. Tears were in his eyes. His affection, I know, is genuine. I wish to do the right thing for both men. I am afraid I cannot do my duty by my husband when my mind is away with the other man.

Would it be wrong to ask my husband to give me up? Would it be wrong to tell the other I hate him, so as to disillusion him? I think it right for my children's sake to stay with their father until they are raised. But the other! I don't want to spoil his life. Please give me your good advice. TROUBLED WIFE.

Through selfishness you are not doing right to your husband and your good and faithful husband, you will suffer tortures from a guilty conscience.

I do not see how you can ask your husband to give you up since he is your father and your father of your children. Since you do not love him you ought to be thankful that he is not affectionate, because it makes it much easier for you to live with him.

JUSTLY FUR WRAP OF REAL KOLINSKY

BY ELOISE.

The woman who intends to buy furs for the winter season should by all means forget summer bargains and winter clothes. If she has to, and take advantage of the August reduction on furs. Furs are becoming more costly each year and seemingly more fashionable and there is no economy in buying cheap imitations. Although there are some good imitations on the market now which are just as beautiful and serviceable as the real thing, it is always better in the long run to have the real thing.

Kolinsky will again take its place among the more costly furs. There are many imitations of this fur and most of them are rank substitutes. The Kolinsky, however, is a beautifully out wrap made of the genuine fur. It reaches to the hips and may be worn as a separate wrap or as a cape of collar over a suit or coat.

his own life. This is the sad thing about TBC patients. They will have their little fling with the fur. The fur away from them. The Kolinsky (as he tells himself) long-distance "specialist" is too tempting to be thrust behind. So the TBC victim must take a chance first. Time enough later to fall back on the established successful management of tuberculosis when the little experiment fails, he argues with himself. And your TBC victim is nothing if not sanguine.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Mineral Oil.

Lately I have been taking mineral oil for constipation and intestinal stagnation and with good results. Please advise me whether the continued daily use of mineral oil in varying doses is harmful. C. C. SAWYER—Perhaps less harmful than the habitual use of any other laxative. The objection to prolonged daily use of mineral oil (also called liquid petrolatum, albolene, nuly and some of the trade names) is that it tends to coat over undigested morsels of food and interfere with their digestion—a possibility to be considered. But why rely upon any medicinal aid to bowel function when diet, exercise and habit will control the bowel? One and habit will control the bowel?

My little son, two years old, gets pinworms from mosquito bites. Is there anything which will keep the pests from biting? Mrs. J. E. SAWYER—Oil of citronella, smeared over the exposed skin repels mosquitoes. If you know how mosquitoes develop you can usually rid your household and surroundings of them. The U. S. Public Health Service, Washington, D. C., or the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., will send on request from citizens a pamphlet of valuable instructions.

Primary Stage.
What are the first evidences of syphilis, and how soon after exposure or infection do they appear? (M. N. D.) ANSWER—The first evidence is the chancre or hard sore, which appears at the point of inoculation from three to five weeks, more or less after exposure. The lesion is merely a slight sore, resembling an "chablate cold sore."

Ingrowing Goitre.
Can ingrowing Goitre be cured with medicine or is a surgical operation necessary? (C. L. M.) ANSWER—You refer to exophthalmic goitre (the disease in which there is perhaps but slight thyroid gland enlargement, but much nervousness, fine tremor of the hands, rapid heart action and palpitation, often fever and loss of weight). Most cases are cured by prolonged open air rest and appropriate medicines.

GUNBOAT A RIVETER.
New York—Gunboat Smith, who fought Jess Willard, Jack Dempsey, and many others of the best men in his class, is now working as a riveter in the Morse shipyards, Brooklyn. The Gunner says he likes getting behind a riveting gun a great deal better than his old profession of swinging the padded mitt in the squared circle.

Combination Salad—Like it? Great stuff at the cafeteria.

—By—

THE CURSE OF UNENTHUSIASM.
A near relative of mine loaned her home—a charming house in a beautiful suburb—to a friend for the summer.

I met that friend on the street the other day and asked her how she liked it, expecting of course that she would speak with enthusiasm in order to send her gratitude to my relative through me.

"Oh, it's very pleasant," she said lukewarmly, and then added with much more real feeling, "but we were awfully hot in that terrible hot spell."

I repeated the incident to a woman who knows her much better than I, and she said: "Oh, that's the way she always talks. Don't mind it. It's just her way."

What an ungracious, unbecoming way!

What Deadly Wet Blankets They Are!

We all know people who are like that, people who are cursed with the curse of unenthusiasm, and we all know what deadly wet blankets they are.

I have a friend whom I hate to show anything new because I know just what her reaction will be. Suppose it's a dress—she looks me over critically while I brace myself for what is coming!

"Don't you think it would look better if the sleeves were shorter?" she says. "I think long sleeves are so ugly. And she's got it a little bit too high in the neck. And then a moment later she adds with none of that warmth that goes right to the cookies

"But what are you going to do, George?" she cried.

George's earnestness surpassed hers; he had become flushed and his breathing was emotional. "I expect to live an honorable life," he said. "I expect to contribute my share to charities; and to take part in—movements."

"What kind?"

"Whatever appeals to me," he said. Lucy looked at him with grieved wonder. "But you really don't mean to have any regular business or profession at all?"

"I certainly do not!" George returned promptly and emphatically.

"I was afraid so," she said in a low voice.

George continued to breathe deeply throughout another protracted interval of silence. Then he said, "Your father is a business man—"

"He's a mechanical genius," Lucy interrupted quickly. "Of course he's both. And he was a lawyer once—he's done all sorts of things."

"Very well. I merely wished to ask if it's his influence that makes you think I ought to do something?"

Lucy frowned slightly. "Why, I suppose almost everything I think or say must be owing to his influence in one way or another. We haven't had anybody but each other for so many years, and we always think about alike, so of course—"

"I see!" And George's brow darkened with resentment. "So that's it, is it? It's your father's idea that I ought to go into business and that you oughtn't to be engaged to me until I do."

Lucy gave a start, her denial was so quick. "No! I've never once spoken to him about it. Never!"

George looked at her keenly, and he jumped to a conclusion not far

Motorman Not Losing Any Time

"I don't think anyone ever suffered more from stomach trouble and indigestion than I have. I had to lay off my run more than half the time, and could get no help from prescriptions or medicine. One of my friends advised using Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which I found to be the greatest remedy ever put on the earth. I have not lost a day since taking it. It is worth its weight in gold. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrh of the stomach, the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. J. P. Baker, Druggist."

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these annoying spots. Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any druggist and apply a little of it at night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful, clear complexion.

Be sure you get the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Tobacco Habit Dangerous

says Doctor Connor, formerly of John Hopkins hospital. Thousands of men suffering from fatal diseases would be in perfect health today were it not for the deadly drug. Stop the habit now before it's too late. It's a simple process to rid yourself of the tobacco habit in a few days. Just go to any up-to-date drug store and get some Nicotol tablets; take them as directed and let the nicotine habit quickly vanish. Druggists refund the money if they fail. Be sure to read large and interesting announcement by Doctor Connor soon to appear in this paper. It tells of the dangers of nicotine poisoning and how to avoid it. In the meantime try Nicotol tablets. You will be surprised at the result.

Coconut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Multisided coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Multisided coconut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

from the train. "But you know without talking to him that it's the way he does feel about it? I see."

She nodded gravely. "Yes," George's brow grew darker still. "Do you think I'd be much of a man," he said slowly, "if I let any other man dictate to me my own way of life?"

"George! Who's dictating your—"

"It seems to me it amounts to that!"

"Oh, no! I only know how papa thinks about things. He's never, never spoken unkindly or dictatingly of you."

Her face was so touching in its distress that for the moment George forgot his anger. He seized that small, troubled hand.

"Lucy," he said huskily. "Don't you know that I love you?"

"Yes—I do."

"Don't you love me?"

"Yes—I do."

"Then what does it matter what your father thinks about my doing something or not doing anything?"

He has his way, and I have mine. Why, look at your father's best friend, my Uncle George Amberson—he's never done anything in his life, and—

"Oh, yes, he has," she interrupted. "He was in politics."

"Well, I'm glad he's out," George said. "Politics is a dirty business for a gentleman, and Uncle George would tell you that himself. Lucy, let's not talk any more about it. Let me tell mother when I get home that we're engaged. Won't you, dear?"

She shook her head. "No," she said, and gave him a sudden little look of renewed gaiety. "Let's let it stay 'almost.'"

"Because your father—"

"Oh, because it's better!"

George's voice shook. "Isn't it your father?"

"It's his ideals I'm thinking of—"

Yes."

George dropped her hand abruptly and anger narrowed his eyes. "I know what you mean," he said. "I dare say I don't care for your father's ideals any more than he does for mine!"

He tightened the reins. Pendennis quickening eagerly to the trot, and when George jumped out of the runabout before Lucy's gate, and assisted her to descend, the silence in which they parted was the same that had begun when Pendennis began to trot.

CHAPTER XIII.

George went driving the next afternoon alone and, encountering Lucy and her father on the road, in one of Morgan's cars, lifted his hat, but no wise relaxed his formal countenance as they passed. Eugene waved a cordial hand quickly returned to the steering wheel; but Lucy only nodded gravely and smiled no more than George did. Nor did she accompany Eugene to the Major's for dinner the following Sunday evening, though both were bidden to attend that feast, which was already reduced in numbers and gaiety by the absence of George Amberson. Eugene explained to his host that Lucy had gone away to visit a school friend.

The information, delivered in the library, just before old Sam's appearance to announce dinner, set Miss Alving in quite a flutter. "Why, George," she said, turning to her nephew, "how does it happen, you didn't tell us?" And with both hands opening as if to express her innocence of some conspiracy, she exclaimed to the others: "He's never said one word to us about Lucy's planning to go away!"

"Probably afraid to," the Major suggested. "Didn't know but he might break down and cry if he tried to speak of it?" He clapped his grandson on the shoulder, inquiring jocularly: "That's it, George?"

George made no reply, but he was red enough to justify the Major's developing a chuckle into laughter; though Miss Fanny, observing her nephew keenly, got an impression that his fiery blush was in truth more fiery than tender.

After the arrival of coffee the Major was rallying Eugene upon some rival automobile shops lately built in a suburb, and already promising to flourish.

"I suppose they'll either drive you out of the business," said the old gentleman, "or else the two of you'll drive all the rest of us off the streets."

"If we do we'll even things up by making the streets five or ten times as long as they are now," Eugene returned.

"How do you propose to do that?"

"It isn't the distance from the center of a town that counts," said Eugene; "it's the time it takes to get by there. This town's already spreading; bicycles and trolleys have been doing their share, but the automobile is going to carry city streets clear out to the county line."

The Major was skeptical. "Dream on, fair son!" he said. "It's lucky for us that you're only dreaming; because if people go to moving that far, real estate values in the old residence part of town are going to be stretched pretty thin."

"I'm afraid so," Eugene assented. "Unless you keep things so bright and clean that the old section will stay more attractive than the new ones."

"Not very likely! How are things going to be kept bright and clean with soft coal and our kind of city government?"

"They aren't," Eugene replied quickly. "There's no hope of it, and already the boarding house is marching up National avenue. My relatives, the Sharons, have sold their house and are building in the country—at least, they call it the country. It will be city in two or three years."

"Good gracious!" the Major exclaimed, affecting dismay. "So your little shops are going to ruin all your business?"

"Unless my old friends take warning in time, or abolishment and get a new kind of city government."

"Well, well!" the Major laughed. "You have enough faith in miracles, Eugene—granting that trolleys and bicycles and automobiles are miracles. So you think they're to change the face of the land, do you?"

"They're already doing it, Major; and it can't be stopped. Automobiles—"

At this point he was interrupted. George was the interrupter. He had said nothing since entering the dining room, but now he spoke in a loud and peremptory voice, using the tone of one in authority who checks idle prattle and settles a matter forever.

"Automobiles are a useless nuisance," he said.

There fell a moment's silence. Isabel gazed incredulously at George, color slowly brightening upon her cheeks and temples, while Fanny watched him with a quick eagerness, her eyes alert and bright. But Eugene seemed merely quizzical, as if not taking this brusquerie to himself. The Major was seriously disturbed.

"What did you say, George?" he asked, though George had spoken but too distinctly.

"I said all automobiles were a nuisance," George answered, repeating not only the words but the tone in which he had uttered them. And he added: "They'll never amount to anything but a nuisance. They had no business to be invented."

The Major frowned. "Of course you forget that Mr. Morgan makes them, and also did his share in inventing them. If you weren't so thoughtless, he might think you rather offensive."

"That would be too bad," said George coolly. "I don't think I could survive it."

STATE DEATH RATE LOWER

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Aug. 8.—Contrary to expectations based on last year's high influenza mortality, Wisconsin's death rate for the second quarter of 1919 was lower than the average for the eleven-year period. The rate was 11.1 per thousand people. The actual decline in the death rate is attributed by the state board of health to the material decrease in number of deaths from all other communicable diseases, with the exception of diphtheria and influenza. The diphtheria increase was 9 and influenza 381, over the 1918 second quarter.

"It has been a common experience throughout the country," says the board in the quarterly statement on mortality, "that the number of deaths reported from the various communicable diseases, with the exception of influenza and pneumonia, has declined rapidly during the influenza epidemic. The relationship, if any, between the epidemic of influenza and outbreak of other communicable diseases has not been determined, but we venture the opinion that a part at least of the decrease in the number of cases and deaths from most of the common communicable diseases is due to better methods of living inspired by the influenza epidemic."

In deaths reported from pneumonia, as compared with the quarterly report a year ago, when there was practically no influence in the state of the epidemic, the pneumonia cases were reported in the 1918 period. There was also a decline of 157 deaths among children under 1 year, and of 100 deaths among persons 65 years of age and over, increased by 78.

Important death causes follow: Pulmonary tuberculosis, 501; other tuberculosis, 63; typhoid fever, 18; diphtheria, 74; scarlet fever, 41; measles, 20; whooping cough, 26; pneumonia, 800; diarrhea, enteritis, under 2 years, 102; meningitis, 68; influenza, 24; cancer, 446; violence, 446. There were 11 deaths from erysipelas, 16 from syphilis, 1 from gonorrhea, 8 from tetanus, and 1 from poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis). The long list of deaths from the counties of Eau Claire, Grant, Iowa, Kenosha, Milwaukee (2), and Racine. An unusual feature of the report is a heavy death toll from "lethargic encephalitis" (sleeping sickness), from various sections of the state.

GIRLS BUILD CABIN
Stockbridge, Mass.—Misses Gertrude Robinson Smith and Miss Milton K. Oliver, prominent members of New York's youngest set, have just completed building a log cabin in the pine and hemlock forest near the home of the Charles Robinson Smiths here.

They cut and sawed the trees, laid the foundation, and did all the work on construction unassisted.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

The modern woman cares nothing for tradition. Just because grandmother or great grandmother never did a thing is no reason for the 1919 woman not trying it. The women of today are fast coming to believe that there is no such thing as "woman's sphere" and "woman's work." They are stepping in everywhere and doing man's work and in many cases doing it better than he ever did it.

There is a couple living out in Santa Monica, California, who have just reversed the usual order of things and it has worked out splendidly for 13 years.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Springer started out on their marital life 13 years ago and it was then that they started on their unusual careers. Mr. Springer made his bride's trousseau and he has been trimming her hats and designing her gowns ever since. Mr. Springer comes from a family which for generations back has boasted an expert designer.

The way Mrs. Springer evens things up for all the time her husband must spend on her clothes is this. She is handy with the saw and hammer and so she does the repairing about the house. She recently singled the roof, using 27 bundles of shingles, and then she painted the interior of the house.

Mrs. Springer says: "We find our unusual opposite abilities a pleasure and perhaps if all men felt that their wives knew as much about some things as they do there would not be so many unhappy couples."

With women entering the industry the way they have in the past two years and with so many married women entering the ranks of the wage earners it will probably be long before the number of married men like the Springers. Perhaps the women will some day earn the money when they are capable and the men who make failures in business keep the homes and rear the families.

WOMAN AIDS CONVALESCENTS
Of all the work organizations of New York with their ramified bureaus and departments, none has done more quietly greater work than that conducted by Mrs. Herbert Gougeon, Ogden of the War Camp Community Service. Mr. Ogden's work is done under the "convalescent bureau." This title may be misleading, Mrs. Ogden thinks.

"True," she explains, "some of the men are convalescents, which implies a state of needed physical recuperation, but for the most part they are

QUESTIONNAIRES ARE SENT TO SOLDIERS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Aug. 8.—Although the questionnaires are still being mailed to Wisconsin soldiers at the rate of about 10,000 per day, the first answers are being received by the state board of education. A survey will be made to ascertain the number of soldiers who would like to take advantage of an education as provided by the Nye bill.

A majority of the answers received so far declare in favor of the Nye educational provisions. It is too early, however, to make any prediction as to the number who would take advantage of the opportunity offered by the state.

Gov. E. L. Philipp vetoed the Nye bill which provided for the education of all honorable discharged soldiers, sailors and marines of Wisconsin who could pass the entrance examinations at the state university, any of the normal schools, Stout Institute, the State Mining school, or any institution where an S. A. T. C. camp was established in 1918. Under supervision of the bill the state would pay the tuition fee and allow the student soldier $30 per month while completing his education for not to exceed four years.

The questionnaires are being sent to approximately 100,000 returned soldiers, sailors and marines. They are asked to designate if they would take advantage of the opportunity to procure an education at the expense of the state; the extent of their education; to state whether or not they could enter the university, normal school or any of the other institutions where the S. A. T. C. was established in 1918 as a regular student or whether they would prefer vocational education; and what institution they would prefer to attend.

When the questionnaires are returned to the state board of education will make a survey of the situation, and if a sufficient number desire to take adjust men who have been tired out by the strain of war, worry on the other side. The men resent the implication that they are convalescents.

In the file index of Mrs. Ogden's desk at the Pershing club, and the names of country homes, farms and to Virginia. There are not many, for the place that is chosen by the men is a home for the men is personally inspected in regard to health conditions, surroundings and hostess. Most emphatically hostess.

"No sentimental women get a chance to look after any of the men who go through my department," Mrs. Ogden insists. "If there is one thing which wrecks the mental calm of returning soldiers it is to be snubbed over and petted. They want to be treated as men."

England is making a mistake, I think, but then, England never gives up anything. I take no part in Irish politics myself, however.

Mr. Croker said he had no opinion on American politics, but was willing to talk about his racing plans.

OKLAHOMA HORSES TO BE SEEN AT FAIR

Millwaukee, Aug. 8.—Oklahoma is expected to send a strong racing representation to the Wisconsin State Fair this year, and among those that may be listed in the late closing events are representatives of the Allentown Farm, owned by Charles R. Allen, and trained and raced by Gus Gardner.

The Allentown Farm stable contains two high class fillies in the three-year-old Grace Huse and the four-year-old Lucy Huse, both of which performed creditably in their races last year. The former taking a record of 2:12 1/2, and the latter one of 2:14 1/2, which was taken in the third heat of a winning race over a half-mile track.

Grace Huse is a three-year-old which took a half mile track record of 2:18 1/2 the past season and is a daughter of Caduceus the Great, one of the best of the speed siring sons of that great stallion, Peter the Great 2:07 1/2.

Lucy Huse took her best record last year in winning the 2:20 trot at the Topeka meeting, landing the race in three straight heats, the third fastest. She also won at Hutchinson in the 2:20 trot; was second in the same class at Des Moines, where she won a heat in 2:16 1/2; was second at Belleville, where she won the heat in 2:18 1/2; was third at Wichita, where she won the first heat in 2:14 1/2 and also won third money at Lincoln.

As both are high class performers their nominations in the late closing events will add prestige to the program.

WOULD FIGHT FOR IRELAND'S FREEDOM

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.)

Dublin, Aug. 7.—Richard Croker, former Tammany boss of New York City, who will return to the U. S. in November, declared today that if he was younger he would jump into Irish politics and work for home rule.

"Ireland is a distinct nation with a different people and why should they not govern themselves?" he said.

"England is making a mistake, I think, but then, England never gives up anything. I take no part in Irish politics myself, however."

Mr. Croker said he had no opinion on American politics, but was willing to talk about his racing plans.

had it, put her in the care of Dr. Smith.

For rare pluck, the young doctor carried off all honors. He refused to call for help on the case. Offers from all his friends, as consultants, were ignored wholesale. His work with the medical corps prevented his being continually with his patient, though to his credit must be said that he devoted every spare minute to Miss Farrar. Finally the "Y" girl recovered from the influenza, but the "complications" continued. Thereupon Dr. Smith decided upon the heroic measures which resulted in such perfect success.

Miss Farrar studied music in Berlin and London, and was in light opera for some time before going on the concert stage. Dr. Smith has a home and leave centers up through France, and into Germany, until she was seized with the illness which, as luck

Janes Make Shore League Debut, Sunday

By George McManus.

MILWAUKEE PLAYS HERE: 1,200 FANS ARE EXPECTED

Noisy fans numbering well over the 1,200 mark are expected to see the Lawrence Janes make their debut in the Lake Shore league at the fair grounds here Sunday afternoon when they will battle the McCoy All Stars of Milwaukee, the other new team in the league. The game will begin at 2:30 o'clock instead of 3 o'clock as has been the custom in the past to allow the Milwaukee bunch to catch the 5 o'clock train home.

Outside this change and the fact that women will be admitted free, paying only for the war tax, the game will be run the same as formerly. Plans are being made to accommodate one of the largest crowds of the season. The grandstand will be cleaned and everything else for the spectators' comfort will be provided, Manager Murphy says.

Big Thing For Janesville.
Real baseball is on the bill. It is the first league game of the season for Janesville and because of this, every effort is being made to get all the fans out to the park to give the Janes a good start and assure financial backing. It is the biggest thing that has happened in Janesville baseball circles in years. Here is a chance for the city to make good. State-wide notoriety will follow if the public shows it wants to be represented in the fastest semi-pro league in Wisconsin.

The McCoy bunch is considered one of the leaders of the Milwaukee outfit. It was their brilliant showing in the past that gave them their berth when Janesville was making such a strong fight. Mel Wolfgang, former White Sox heavier, will probably pitch for the visitors. If he is not in the box, McShane will doubtless be called upon.

League Will Twirl.
The remainder of the line-up will be Munson C. Fisher, ss, Fraeskel 1b, Lee 2b, Brooks 3b, Swartz 4b, Spillert 5b. An official league umpire will be on the job.

Against this outfit, Manager Murphy will pit the same formidable aggregation that has been so successful to date, namely, Sam Lengquist on the firing line, with Croake behind the bat, Pierce at short, Gorman on the infield sack, Miller at second, and Victory Bond on the corner. Vinny Kakuske and Sachs will chase flies in the garden, the first named gent being held in reserve to assume pitching duties in case Lengquist is not in trim.

Although Sam's game has been billed extensively as being against the Marquettes of Chicago, this game has been cancelled. It was called off by Manager Murphy yesterday, immediately upon receiving word that he had been granted the Racine franchise in the league.

Call me later, Mother, dear—I'm saving time tomorrow by breakfasting at the cafeteria.

There is a rule in the American league that prohibits persons not connected with the game from occupying seats in the dugout. This rule was rescinded in Washington recently, when Senator Bernard, of Maine, attended the game as a guest of Clarke Griffith. Senator Bernard is regarded as the best posted baseball man in the upper house, and whenever possible he attends games in Washington. He is a continuous and noisy rooter for the Senators, regardless of the score of the opposition.

BRINGING UP FATHER

CITY LEAGUE HONORS AT STAKE TOMORROW; SCHEDULE IS REVISED

TOMORROW'S GAMES
At Samson park—Parker Pen vs. Samson Tractor, 3 p. m.
At Fair Grounds—Janesville vs. Y. M. C. A., 2 p. m. and Products Co. vs. Barb Wire, 3:30 p. m.

The lead in the Industrial league will be at stake tomorrow afternoon when the Parker Pen and Samson Tractor meet at Samson park in the big game of the season. A revision of the schedule has been effected so that this game will be the only one of the day at the Samson diamond. It will start at 3 o'clock. The usual doubleheader will be played at fair grounds instead of at the tractor park as formerly. The official schedule for the final games in the league is given above. All players are to observe this as official.

Samson Spirit High.
Spirit down at the Samson is running high in prospects of the coming game with the Parkers. The pen-makers have been undefeated as yet and have won all their games by decided and luscious scores. The team has been yet to hit Yiner, their south-paw star with any effectiveness. The Samson nine say they will cop the game with a good break of luck and good pitching by Berger.

Test Comes Tomorrow.
The Samson played a shop nine in preparation for the fray with the leaders. Just so long as Manager Joe Ekert or some one can inject a good wallop of the "pep" hypodermic into the tractor nine for the deciding game, a hot melee is sure to result. For in some games the Samson team has shown that it can field, play brilliant ball on defense and there are at least six men on the club who can be depended upon to hit. But half of the time they lacked that mysterious something to impel them to field cleanly and then wallop the old apple to a good advantage. Much depends on Berger for it is admitted the Parker Penmen are the best sticking club in the league and once they get to hitting the ball, they generally don't stop until enough runs have been raced across the pan to make the game a landslide.

Stickney to Play.
Stickney, Dopp and the Samson's best bet—Kasmarek—will probably hold down the outfield positions, and this has been the greatest weak point of the tractor men, except when these three men were shagging the flies. Stickney may be shifted to first. While there is not a better fielding first sacker in handling throws than the left handed Siedschlag, his weakness at bat may result in this shift for Stickney can field the position and is one of the best hitters the Samson have. If Siedschlag could only develop sticking ability and show speed on the sacks, he would be hard to beat as a first sacker, for he can pick off throws from any angle, dig them out of the dust and go up in the air after them with equal ease and surety.

Nelson at Short.
Nelson at short has playing ability and he is a dangerous hitter. The man in which he stands up to the plate and swings brands him as a ball player whether he fans out or hits a homer. His fielding has not been up to par recently but with a decided interest in the game, not much is going to pass through him. No fault can be found with the fielding and hitting of either Miller or Croake, playing at second and third when they try. The Samson backers and fans are confident if the team plays the baseball it is competent to play, the Parker Pen nine is due to end its long string of victories.

Meeting Monday Night.
St. John will pitch for the "Y" in their game against the Machine company at the fair grounds. The remainder of the "Y" line up will be: Nuzum or Riley c, Hemming 1b, Schumaker 2b, Craig ss, Cassidy 3b, Fox rf, Brascher lf, Marko or Grimm cf, Albie Black is slated to pitch for the Barb wire bunch in their battle with the Products nine, the second one of the twin bill at the fair grounds. Team managers will hold their regular meeting Monday night. Several important matters will be discussed, the most important of which will be the suggestion of playing a twilight league series. With the half-holiday final games due tomorrow, the majority of the teams appear to be in favor of a twilight league. The teams are now well organized and wish to keep on playing.

HITS

Harry Greb, Pittsburgh middleweight, and Mike O'Dowd, of St. Paul, middleweight champion, have been matched for a 15 round bout at Toledo, Labor day, with the 158 pound crown at stake. It is understood some of the reform element in Toledo will oppose the bout on the ground that the Willard-Dempsey affair was not up to the advertised standard.

Down in Philadelphia they do not like noise. In a recent game at Shibe park between the Athletics and Cleveland, Chet Thomas, of the Mackmen, made a lot of noise while coaching at third base. The next day several of the newspapers gave the Athletic player a severe punning and charged him with being a rank nuisance.

No matter whether Cincinnati wins the National league pennant and gets into the world's series, owners of the club are going to realize the greatest profit on the club they have ever realized.

Cincinnati is now baseball crazy and every game played there attracts a near capacity crowd, something unheard of in Porkville.

The Blessedness of Heaven

By ROBT. McWATY ROSS, D. D.
Professor of Bible Doctrine and Homiletics
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes.—Rev. 21:4.

One of the complaints of unbelief concerning the Bible as a revelation from God, is its seeming scarcity of details concerning the nature of the heavenly life. Considering the interest which must ever be attached to a subject so lofty and important as immortality, it has been claimed that God might have told us a little more about that heavenly home and the life to which the Gospel is a divine invitation. To such objections, there are two answers:

First, God has been limited in his revelation by man's capacity to receive, and second, Bible revelation concerning the future is much larger than is generally supposed.

That God should be limited in his revelation by our capacity to receive is easily understood. The returned traveler from Europe cannot give a detailed description of the architectural features of Westminster Abbey to his little child, not because he does not desire to do so but because the child is without ability to interpret words concerning carved columns, arch domes, and sculptured marble. Indeed, God has protected the Bible from the speers of the incredulous by limiting the descriptions of heaven to what seem a few minor details. We have read of an Oriental prince who laughed in the face of the Western traveler who told of rivers chilled to hardness so that an elephant might walk on their surface. It is related that the Southern pastor of a rural church was tried for falsehood because he told of an ice-making machine seen in the North during a summer vacation. God has told men already more than the natural man can believe.

A Wondrous Description.
The Bible descriptions of heaven are exceedingly large to those who study the Bible with care. The closing chapters of Revelation tell of a final judgment, a renovated earth and a sinless life for redeemed humanity. In this description the highest things of earthly consideration such as jewels, precious stones and pearls become the lowest things of the heavenly life, where streets are of gold and the precious stones constitute city walls. All this is significant, but perhaps the finest description of heaven is contained in the single phrase, "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." If nothing else were written, this would be enough, for it is the promise that God will eliminate from the future every tear-provoking circumstance and fill existence with all the things that belong to blessedness. If we can by survey of life discover the varied causes of pain and tears, we shall thereby discern the fulness and joy of that life where tears are no more.

Tears of Physical Pain.
Physical pain is a very real thing. The cry of the infant, as it first draws its vital breath; the moans of distress from homes and hospitals; the cries of the wounded and dying on battlefields; the compressed lips of old age as it struggles against decay, all tell of the terror of physical pain. It means much to read of a life where "this corruptible shall put on incorruption, and this mortal shall put on immortality." He who can change the dark soil into the rosebud and the carbon into the diamond can give man the body of glory in the future.

Tears of Vexation and Disappointment.
Tears of vexation and disappointment have blinded the eyes of most people. Unshed tears fill the hearts of thousands who cannot reach their ideals in life. There are the tears of those who have loved and lost, or worse still have loved and gained and found the object of love unworthy. All these tears will be wiped away in the future. We shall dwell in the divine light and know the divine will and no longer end paths of weary effort that must be retraced with bleeding feet.

Tears of Fear and Dread.
Tears of fear and dread occupy a large place in human experience, also tears of bereavement and loneliness, and the tears of ignorance are those that come to the eyes of truth-loving men, as they realize the limitations of human wisdom and yearn for a fuller knowledge of the unknown. But the full revelation is coming, and the tearless life shall be ours who believe in Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord.

Patience.
The exercise of patience involves a continual practice of the presence of God. For we may be come upon at any moment for an almost heroic display of good temper, and it is a short road to selfishness, for nothing is left to self; all that seems to belong most intimately to self, to be self's private property, is invaded by these continual trials of patience. The family is full of such opportunities.—F. W. Faber.

Pleasant Fields Of Holy Writ

THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LECTURE

Third Quarter: Lesson VI: Acts XVI, 9-15: James V, 19-20: August 10, 1919
Golden Text: Ye shall be my witnesses both in Jerusalem and in all Judea and Samaria and unto the uttermost part of the earth.—Acts 1:8.

WINNING OTHERS TO CHRIST

The genius of Homer had converted the spot where Paul now stood (Troas) into a veritable Calvary. The classic delineations of the New Testament flash out one which eclipses them all in pathos, significance, and power. After the visitation of the converts of his first missionary tour, an act which was prompted by tender pastoral solicitude, Paul essayed to enter new fields. He naturally turned to those who were nearest. But two doors were shut sharply in his face. These provinces may not have been ripe for the gospel; for some one else could work in them who could not in the field to which Paul was about to be called. Bithynia and proconsular Asia were not reprobated. Peter salutes them in his first epistle. The same hand which had closed two doors opened a third wide, and by an unmistakable sign bade Paul enter. The Spirit of Jesus (R. V.), promised by him, sent in answer to his prayer, by whom we too are to be "led" and by whom "walk" and "live"—gave the token to the waiting missionaries. In the mid hour of night, in a vision, the Macedonian appeared, and, as such by garb and accent, appears and, with outstretched hands and suppliant voice, cries: "Come over into Macedonia and help us." The religious destiny of Europe was hovering in one of nature's oratories on the river bank at Philippi. In Macedonia. A wayfaring man joins their company. He talks with them. That is all. Yet not all. The kingdom of heaven comes then and there, as Jesus said it would, "without observation," noiselessly. And a woman's prayer-meeting was the cradle of Christianity on the continent of Europe.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.
In that little company by the river-side there was one woman whose name will be remembered in the history of the world. She was a convert in Europe—Lydia, the seller of purple, of the city of Thyatira. It is worthy of notice that she came from the very province where the apostle was forbidden to preach. Thus indirectly, by his obedience to the Spirit, he introduced his message into the very country which he essayed to enter. No doubt, Lydia was a woman of noble character, and when she returned to Thyatira, opened the way under the most favorable auspices for the coming of Paul, or one of the apostles. Lydia was far from home. She was in a place where there were the fewest possible Jews. The heathen knew nothing about a Sabbath. They were accustomed to buy and sell seven days in the week. She might have used a little subtlety, and said: "If I keep my shop open on Sunday, I will sell out that much quicker and can go home sooner. What is the use of closing my shop when there is no synagogue for me to go and worship at? The heathen would never remark any thing unusual in its being open, and there are so few Jews that the moral effect of an open store upon them would be insignificant." She might even have said: "If I don't keep my shop open, the poor, dear heathen may be tempted to do something bad, while they might have been buying goods at my counter." But Lydia was a dealer in purple stuff, a wide and of fast colors. She was not a dealer in sophistry, so when the Sabbath came she closed her shop-door, and went out to the natural rendezvous of devout souls—the river bank—to worship and to pray. In that lovely Oriental scene, where Abraham's servant finds a wife for his son Isaac, the servant utters a most significant word when he says: "I being in the way, the Lord led me." So Lydia, all unconsciously, but none the less certainly, was putting herself, by her love and loyalty to God, in the way of hearing that gladdest message that ever falls upon human ears—tidings of "Him who is mighty to save unto the uttermost." Thus early the fair flower of Christian hospitality was blooming. This grace has frequently been indispensable to wayfaring evangelists. By it also angels have been entertained in many homes. Courtesy has been abused in some instances, no doubt. Peter Cooper is said to have left the Church because in the days of his comparative poverty he felt himself burdened by the visits of itinerants. Exceptions prove rules. The Macedonian of the vision has become the universal type of human need. His cry has become the proverbial petition of all distressed. The picture is a classic of which any literary might be proud. In particular, the Macedonian represented the culture and progress of the highest civilization of earth—Greece and Rome. In him the highest splendor of heathenism confessed its insufficiency. It lacked one thing which could conserve its graces and shrive its vices.

The evil word yet unspoken is still within one's power. Once uttered it is like the stone unloosened from the mountain side and sent hurtling down. It cannot be stopped or recalled. It may bring injury or even death to those below. On the contrary the good word is a "piece of pleasure set afloat."

NO POSTPONEMENT OF WAGE ENFORCEMENT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Aug. 8.—There will be no postponement of the date of the enforcement of the minimum wage order. It was decided today by the Industrial Commission on a hearing upon this subject was held on Monday at Madison before the commission and advisory wage board. At its conclusion the advisory wage board unanimously recommended that there be no change in the date of the enforcement of the minimum wage order. This board is composed of four representatives of the general public, four representatives named by the organized labor and four representatives named by the Wisconsin Manufacturers' association and the Milwaukee Association of Commerce.

The industrial commission has also announced further interpretations of the minimum wage order after consultation with the advisory wage board. The matters dealt with in these new interpretations are the counting of tips to employees in hotels and restaurants, the application of the minimum wage order to persons under sentence of probation, and the determination of the length of the learning period for intermittent workers. Upon these points the commission has announced the following interpretations of the minimum wage order:

Tips received from patrons cannot be counted as a part of the wage in computing the amount due under the minimum wage order. For intermittent workers, 160 hours of work shall be regarded as equivalent to one month of continuous employment in computing the learning period under paragraph 2 of the minimum wage order.

A special hearing will be held at a date subsequent to be determined upon relative to the application of the minimum wage order to telephone exchanges. In small exchanges the operators are able to sleep a considerable part of the night, and consequently it would not be fair to count the entire time they are nominally on duty. To determine what is a fair wage for such night operators, the industrial commission is now writing all telephone companies asking them to conduct a "peg count" for the period of one month, so that the commission may have information as to the number of calls which are received at various hours during the day and the night. After this "peg count" is completed, the industrial commission will conduct a hearing upon this general subject and will issue special orders with reference to the period of time for which telephone companies must pay during the night hours.

Must Change Hot Towels —State Barber Inspector

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
Eldorado, Kan.—You cannot use the same hot towel on three different customers in any Eldorado barber shop and get away with it. The state barber inspector catches you. L. A. East, state inspector, dropped into town and visited the barber shops here. Result, three barbers were ordered arrested by local officials because the barbers had used the same hot towel on several customers without cleansing it.

Are Wed in Harvest Field by Minister in Overalls

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
Franklin, Ind.—Miss Addie Hibbs and John H. Haslan of Edinburg drove to the home of the Rev. Mr. Clinard, pastor of the Shiloh church, to be married. They were informed the pastor was in the harvest field, so they drove to the field and the minister, in overalls, tied the knot while harvest hands looked on.

Fishing by Seaplane on Pacific Coast

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
Santa Barbara, Cal.—Get out the old seaplane and let's go fishing. That's what they're doing here now. The seaplane was set by A. K. Bennett, who invited six men and women guests aboard the plane, piloted by Allen Longhead. They flew out over the Pacific anchored in a channel, and made a good catch.

The Daily Novelette

THE TUB MYSTERY.

(Synopsis of preceding chapters: Kootie Holters is a dutiful wife to Upson Holters, although she is rather madly in love with the champion skater of the world, Iben Isensee. Even then she is dutiful for she feels it her duty to tell Upson that she no longer idolizes him and waits for a favorable opportunity which comes to her just as he has stepped aboard a four-gun vessel and the ship pulls out. Upson is furious and goes to pull out his gun but hasn't any. The ship whistles down the torrent of naughty words upon yells which is just as well, if not very good. Kootie tells him just at this moment because she knows he cannot touch her on the ocean therefore she is safe. So she shakes her right hand with her left and says "smart girl, Kootie kid," and flings herself into the burning, yearning arms of Iben Isensee, the skater. While Upson is "Bye in Yurup on the business trip, Kootie flies suit for alimony and is just about to walk out with it, when Upson walks in court which naturally upsets the proceedings as well as Kootie's plans and he takes Kootie back home. While Upson rattles on talking he is thinking of revenge on Kootie and Iben for making him look like a luxury taxi on a three-for-five deal. While Upson rattles on, Kootie is wondering how she can marry Iben without doing the Juliet trance act, for a vault in July would be awful stuffy.)

Halloween dawned and Kootie and Upson were seemingly reconciled. "Say, Upson, on Halloween, we always bobbed for apples—but you can't bob this one!" And Kootie pointed an apple floating around in a tub of water.

Upson immediately stooped over and tried to bite the apple with his hands and feet tied behind him. And just as he was about to get a good bite, Kootie just for fun, took a leaf from the dinner table and put it over Upson's head. In the tub, and sat on it. Thinking that he must have eaten the apple up by this time which was some fifteen minutes later, Kootie got off the board and pulled Upson away from the tub.

"Gracious, he is angry with me and won't speak!" she exclaimed as she took up one of his cold, lifeless hands. "Some men don't know how to take a joke. I don't know how to take a joke!" she cried, angrily, and left the room.

(Does Upson ever speak to her again? Or is he dead? If so, did Kootie mean to kill him or was it an accident or was it one of those popular, practical jokes? Last Thursday's issue of the Morning Glory will tell you.—Ed.)

THE WISHING PLANE

When Captain Brave told the pony man that the captain and Jack would ask Ladydear and Jane to remain on the Shetland island another day so that Jack and he could go with the fishermen the pony man hurried over to the boat to arrange with the fishermen to take them along.

Jack thought they would start the next morning, so he was a surprised boy when the pony man, on his return, told them they would have to hustle back to the house and get something to eat unless they wanted to start on the trip hungry.

Ladydear and Jane had wandered a little way down the dock. The captain and Jack called to them and walked toward them. Of course Jane and Ladydear said they'd just as soon spend the night and another day on the island. The pony man told them that his wife would be glad to have them stay at their house, so they all walked back to the pony farm.

Jack couldn't imagine why the fishermen started out at night. The pony man soon told him, though, that it had always been the custom of the sailors to leave the shore late in the afternoon, sail out to the fishing grounds, stay there all night hauling in the fish and then sail home the next morning. There were a lot of reasons, but they were all about things that Jack wasn't very familiar with.

Before long, Jack, the captain and the pony man were back at the dock and had climbed on board the boat. The pony man told Jack the names of all the sailors. The captain was named McGregor. He was a broad-shouldered man with great big arms, big hands and a great voice. Jack might have been somewhat timid if the captain hadn't had such a pleasant smile and a merry twinkle in his eyes when he looked at Jack.

There were Johnson, Baird, a funny little fellow everybody called "Bobbie," because he was always hobbling up at unexpected places around the docks, and two other sailors. They had made everything ready by the time Jack and his friends arrived and in less time than it takes to tell had hauled up the sail and were slowly gaining speed as they started out of the little harbor among the cliffs.

Jack was sure that he was going to have a wonderful night. It was a long way out to the fishing grounds. Captain McGregor and the other men took turns explaining things about the boat and about sailing and fishing to Jack. When his questions ceased they told him stories of the fishermen they knew. Most of the stories were of great storms that had swept the North sea, wrecking boats and drowning many of the men on the boats. Each storm had its hero.

The story that appealed most to Jack, though, was the one about Captain Sammons. Maybe it was because there was a little boy in the story.

Captain McGregor told the story, and tomorrow I'll tell you just what Jack heard.

Cops Grow Shorter and Lighter Down Chicago Way

Chicago.—Men are getting shorter and lighter, according to statistics, and the big, burly and large-footed policeman is soon to go. No longer will candidates for places on the Chicago police force be required to be taller, heavier or bulkier than the average. The civil service commission has changed the regulations from five feet eight inches to five feet seven inches and lowered the minimum weight from 145 to 140 pounds.

Hebrew Takes Castor Oil, Saying "Thank You"

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
Atlantic, Ga.—An American Red Cross worker in Palestine report, among other findings, an unfailing observance of manners or Oriental children. One youthful citizen of Jerusalem, taken to an American dispensary and castor oil was prescribed. He watched solemnly as the dreadful dose was measured out. Then he swallowed it heroically. Then he gasped—and then he said: "Thank you!" He was in mind the customary howling of an American childhood confronted by this treatment, the Hebrew might be rewarded as deserving the D. S. C.

glossy, delicate, pale green, glossy foliage that it surpasses all other broad leaved trees in the density of its shade. The bark is always light colored, a very early in the spring it turns almost snow-white on the twigs and branches.

The beech grows best in heavy moist soil, but develops fairly well in thin, dry soils or in limestone soil. It grows slowly but at an even rate and is seldom attacked by insects or disease. It roots deeply, and therefore rather hard to transplant. It is also liable to sunscald and frost injury.

The ROMANCE of BUSINESS TRUE STORIES of SUCCESSFUL WOMEN

EDITH MORIARTY

Agnes Heller belongs to that vast army of American working girls whose lives consist of "eight-hour days at so much per, with Saturday afternoon off." Agnes looked just like the hundreds of other girls who thronged the busy cafeterias at noon choosing their lunches from the price list instead of the menu.

She had joined the ranks of the wage-earners when she was 17 after having had two years and a half of high school. Her father died when she was but a child and Mrs. Heller had supported the family by sewing until it became too strenuous for her and then it was that Agnes who took to support herself and mother. She did the usual thing, entered a store and was put wherever there was a shortage of help until finally she was made a regular member of the sales force in the furniture department, which included curtains, rugs and draperies.

Her salary, if it might be called that, was eight dollars and a half of which she started on her business career. She worked in the same store for seven years, during which time her pay had slowly climbed to the dizzying heights of $18 a week with an occasional additional commission for selling some white elephant in her department or some of last year's stock.

Mrs. Heller's health continued to fail until Agnes found herself with the cares of the household and an invalid mother added to the hard work of her store duties. When her mother died after her prolonged illness Agnes was left with her grief and the worry and strain of her months of nursing caused a nervous breakdown and she was forced to leave the store for an indefinite period.

She had saved some money, not much, but enough to keep her from worrying while she took a rest for two months. Then she became nervous for her to go back to work. They were keeping her position for her at the store but when she told her physician that she was going back to the store he would not consent. He advised her to take at least one more month off before doing any kind of work. She insisted that it was imperative that she do something immediately and he finally said that if she found some kind of outdoor work she might do something for a few hours a day.

This sounded like an impossible plan to Agnes. She had never done anything in her life but sell furniture and rugs and lamps and the like. To start something else after seven years of the same thing seemed to her not only impossible but foolish. The doctor was firm, however, and said he would have to give up the case if she would not follow his instructions. It was then Agnes realized the seriousness of her case and she sat down and tried to think of some outdoor work which she was qualified to do. It was hard for she knew of few kinds of work and these she could think of were indoor jobs. She looked through the papers, hoping to get some help there and finally this ad caught her eye:

WANTED—Young woman to act as saleswoman in real estate office. Good opportunity for right person. Box 22-2.

That would surely be an outdoor job and it would probably be short hours and then, too, she certainly ought to be qualified to sell, for what else had she done eight hours every day of the past seven years. She applied for the position and got it. Her time was practically at her own disposal and she was to be paid a commission on all of her sales. She found the work far more interesting than the work at the store and she gained her health much more quickly than was thought possible. It was but one short year before she had become as successful as many of the best salesmen who had been in the business for years. She had more money than she had ever had before and she finally started investing her own money in real estate, buying houses and lots for herself when she said of her business.

The year the war started, building was practically stopped and houses and even rooms were at a premium. Agnes decided to take a large old house which she had bought and furnish it up for a rooming house and then sell it. She went to her old department in the store and picked up complete furnishings at bargain prices for she knew the value of the

"Two Gun" Charley's Home is Now Cowshed

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
Boulder, Col.—A cow now occupies the jail in Eldorado, near here, which in early days, when this section was a mining camp, accommodated "Two Gun" Charley Nicholson and other notorious gunmen of that time. Long before the war a citizen decided to lease the jail and use it as a cowshed. Old timers here recall how "Two Gun" Charley, armed with local vodka, would start out in search of Mexicans, saying he would shoot the first one he saw. If he failed to encounter any, Charley would apparently fire at almost anybody else, but as no one was ever injured the authorities would keep him in jail till he sobered and then release him with orders not to leave the camp.

Grim Humor by Hero; "Joke on the Germans"

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
Lake Elsinore, Cal.—Corporal Raymond W. Boone, a "Devil Dog" of Lake Elsinore's war hero, stepped on the train here with the Distinguished Service cross, several machine gun bullets imbedded in his left leg, a bayonet scar across his face and a mutilated right hand. Reviewing his part as a marine in the war, Boone said: "You see, the joke was on the Germans. I am left-handed, and they got my right hand."

WHO'S WHO in the Day's News

SENATOR C. S. THOMAS.

In a recent speech in the senate, Senator Thomas, without directly attacking the league of nations covenant, but by an analysis of the proposed league in the light of history and the present situation throughout the world delivered one of the greatest blows yet suffered by the president's followers in this fight. Until making this speech Mr. Thomas, who is one of the leaders in the counterclockwise party, was counted among the faithful adherents of the league scheme.

SEN. THOMAS

Charles Spaulding Thomas was born at Darien, Ga., Dec. 6, 1844. His parents removed to Michigan in his early boyhood, and it was here that he received his education, graduating from the University of Michigan in 1871. In the same year he went to Denver, where he practiced law until 1879. He then hung up his shingle in Leadville for six years, returning in 1885 to Denver, where he has since been a prominent member of the bar.

Senator Thomas has long been identified with Colorado politics. He was a member from Colorado of the Democratic national committee, 1884-86; governor of Colorado, 1899-1901; temporary chairman of the Democratic national convention at Kansas City in 1900; elected U. S. senator, Jan. 14, 1913, for unexpired term (1913-15) of Charles J. Hughes, deceased; re-elected for term, 1915-23.

Ready-made Suits for $40 —Shoes at Only $14

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
Boston—Fall suits will cost $10 more than last year and shoes will increase $2 to $4 in price. It will be possible for a man to buy a fairly good ready-made suit for $40 and the same quality of shoes at $14. This was revealed in a canvass of Boston. When cheaper than these prices clothing and shoes will descend to the shoddy standard, some dealers declare. Since 1914 prices for clothes have increased 75 per cent and for shoes they have doubled.

The advance in medium grade clothes and shoes is less, proportionately, than in the higher grades. Cost of production of fancy linings and finishing material for suits has, in some instances, gone up 150 and 200 percent.

Increased cost of raw materials and new labor prices are the reasons advanced in Boston for higher prices.

High Cost of Cleanliness —Increased Soap Prices

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
Chicago—It is going to cost more to keep clean. Advances in the wholesale price of soaps have gone into effect, making the common brand of laundry soap from 25 to 75 cents a case higher, meaning perhaps a cent a bar increase to the consumer. Toilet and fancy soaps are 25 to 50 percent in proportion, it is declared.

Colored Women Organize Political Club in Iowa

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
Des Moines, Ia.—Colored women of Des Moines have met and made further plans for the organization of a woman's political club for colored women only. The club will make a systematic study of civic and political problems, it is said, and the members will be instructed on how to vote. Get the habit of reading the classified ads—it will pay you.
